The Litigation Unit attorneys work with federal law enforcement agencies to identify, investigate and prosecute the most significant national and international drug trafficking and money laundering organizations. As part of the Bilateral Case Initiative, the majority of the Litigation Unit attorneys prosecute major transnational narcotic traffickers and money launderers in U.S. courts, using evidence gathered by U.S. federal agents and foreign law enforcement officials abroad.

Policy Unit attorneys participate in drafting domestic and international narcotics legislation, strategies and statements of policy addressing challenging topics such as: precursor and essential chemical control, synthetic drugs and anabolic steroids, drug paraphernalia, domestic marijuana, hemp cultivation, and federal sentencing guideline issues. Policy Unit attorneys support the United States Attorneys and their assistants by responding to inquiries relating to substantive, procedural and policy matters. The Unit publishes a variety of training manuals, handbooks, and a periodic newsletter to aid federal state prosecutors in investigating and prosecuting violations of the federal narcotics laws. Policy Unit attorneys litigate appeals arising from cases prosecuted by the Section, U.S. Attorney Offices when requested, and appeals of denials or revocation of licenses and registrations by the Drug Enforcement Administration. Policy Unit attorneys provide support for international investigative and prosecutive efforts, assist foreign governments in drafting effective counter-narcotics legislation and developing national and international drug strategies.
